IMPORTANT MESSAGE

As the impact of the Coronavirus (COVID-19) evolves, the City of Madisonville is working with county, state and federal officials to share the latest information. While the immediate risk to most Texans remains low, state and local agencies are taking steps to limit the spread of the virus, mitigate health and economic risk, and protect our communities.

The city urges residents to follow the advice and guidelines of the Texas Department of State Health Services and the Center for Disease Control and Prevention. Their recommendations can be found at the following websites:
